Rheumatism Soon
Becomes Chronic

The Result of Tired Kidneys
Failing to Expel Poisonous Waste Matter.

Tired, overworked kidneys allow poisonous uric acid to remain in the blood instead of expelling it from the system. That is the cause of chronic rheumatism. The disease gets into some joint or group of muscles and settles there, and only strenuous treatment will dislodge it.

Rheuma softens the uric acid crystals lodged in the joints and muscles, causing the terrible pains, and passes them out of the system through the kidneys and bowels.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. Unless it is pure the organs become diseased. Rheuma purifies the blood and the kidneys, then regain their natural activity.

Lee & Osgood and all druggists sell Rheuma at a price so inexpensive that it is folly to be without it.

a director of the Windham County National bank.

Incident to the approach of the November election in this town, a Putnam paper sets forth that Killingly bums are not wanted in the nearby city, but already has sufficient troubles of its own.

Knows Borough Military Men
Major Richard P. Freeman, republican candidate for congress, to speak at the party's rally here tonight, has an acquaintance with a number of local military men, gained at the outbreak of the Spanish war.

That the count of the vote is expected to be very irregular as to party lines may be expedited next Tuesday night, a suggestion has been heard for the selection of additional counters, though this might not prove to be any great help.

NAME INCORRECT
So Ballots in John M. Tatem's District Must be Reprinted

Because the name of the republican candidate for senator in the 28th district reads "James M. Tatem" instead of John M. Tatem, as it should be, all ballots for the town in the district must be reprinted, entailing considerable expense on account of some of the errors. This means in the town of Killingly, Putnam, Woodstock, Thompson, Eastford, Mr. Tatem's home town, and Ashford. The incorrect specimen ballots have been received here.

HAMPTON WIDOW
Fares Hard as Result of Compensation Act—Farmers Against It

On the eve of election many Windham county farmers are asking candidates for representatives in the state legislature if they are favorable to amendment of the workmen's compensation act, which became effective last January, along lines that will relieve the farmer from some of the burdens it imposes on that class.

Many agriculturists are very bitter toward this piece of legislation and cite innumerable instances of the hardships it has worked upon them. Not a few of them state frankly that they have decided not to employ help needed to do work on their farms because they cannot afford to pay the insurance required for the necessary protection against the operation of the act and dare not employ men without the protection of insurance.

One of the innumerable cases mentioned to show the effect of the act in farming communities is that of a Hampton widow. Alone on her little place, upon which she is entirely dependent for support, a man employed by her to chop wood severed toes as the result of a slip of his axe. She had no insurance to protect the employee. As a result her little property has been liable to meet the compensation that the injured man is entitled to receive, so relates a resident of one of the sections who was in the hospital Thursday.

The farmers want to know what the state will do to protect them about changes in the compensation law at the coming legislative session and they propose to find out before they accord candidates their support.

ONLY TWO PUPILS
So School in Sparks District Will be Closed After Today

It is expected that the school in the Sparks district, where Miss Hilja

Roberts is teacher, will be permanently closed this (Friday) afternoon. This has been brought about by the removal from the district of five of the seven children who have been attending school there. Only two children remain and arrangements will be made whereby the education of these will be continued.

During the past summer the town school committee practically decided to close this school and send the children of the district to East Killingly. This plan, considered advisable from many standpoints, was finally abandoned after hearing the earnest pleas of residents of the Sparks neighborhood and their claims of a probable increase this year in the attendance over last year. When the school reopened in September the usual number of pupils appeared, and no more.

Now five of these have gone from the district, so arguments of better educational facilities at East Killingly that went for naught at the time are now made effective, for those who remain, as the result of an unexpected turn of affairs.

SENATORIAL CANDIDATES.
Were Speakers at Democratic Rally at Town Hall.

About 500 gathered at the town hall Thursday evening for the democratic rally, which was preceded by a concert by St. James band. The speakers were Frank Fenton of Willimantic and Dr. Omer Larue of Putnam, the candidates for senators in the county. They discussed the political issues of the day and made an appeal for the support of party candidates. Dr. Larue also spoke briefly in French. The principal speaker of the evening was Napoleon Bissonnette of Boston who discussed the democratic policies and defended the Wilson administration and the party's record since it came into power. Mr. Bissonnette also gave a brief address in French. Democratic speakers were present from all parts of the town.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE
AS WAR DETERENT
Argument Advanced by President of Illinois Association.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Woman suffrage will insure a country against being drawn into war, according to Grace Wilbur Trout, president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association, here tonight in her address to the 46th annual convention of the organization. "If those French, German, Russian, Austrian and Belgian mothers and wives could have spoken at the polls, their husbands and brothers would not now be filling the trenches with their mangled bodies," she said.

THINKS CONNECTICUT PEOPLE COMPETENT TO DECIDE
Senator Brandegee Would Not Vote for Sheppard-Hobson Bill.

In an answer to a letter from a New Haven man inquiring his attitude on the Sheppard-Hobson bill Senator Brandegee says he believes the people of Connecticut are perfectly competent to decide whether or not liquor shall be sold in this state.

He does not think the central government in Washington should determine that question for them. He is better qualified to determine this question for themselves than is the congress of the United States.

The open letter to P. H. Mansfield of New Haven on this subject follows:

Dear Sir: Yours of the 14th instant, enclosing a letter to the effect that a copy of an open letter published in the Times-Leader, and stating that you await my answer, is received. The open letter in the Times-Leader states that your societies feel that they have a right to ask my opinion on the so-called Sheppard-Hobson bill for the submission to the state of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. You ask me in your own letter the following question: "Will you, if elected, support or oppose this legislation?" You also state that you trust you may be favored through the columns of the New Haven Times-Leader with a frank statement of my position.

Replying to the above request I would state that I infer from your inquiry that you do not read my address to the Republican state convention, which was published in the press of the state on Sept. 10, 1914. In that address I stated as follows:

"It is evident therefore that the framers of the constitution designed to provide for its amendment in cases of real necessity, but intended to discourage the frequent and easy amendment of this great fundamental framework of our government. The very fact, however, that it is somewhat difficult to get an amendment into the constitution as it does the affirmative action of two-thirds of both houses of congress and the ratification necessary by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, encourages the advocates of some measures to use every effort to get their proposition imbedded in the constitution of the United States, because they see if it once could be placed here it could be treated by legislation in the states should not be placed in the
